Environment & nature

- In 2017, a German entomological society published a study that showed that 75% of all insects, measured by weight, in German nature reserves had disappeared over 27 years.
- The current worldwide loss of biodiversity is called the sixth extinction. The five extinctions before were created by nature and climate. This time our "civilization" is responsible.

A Swedish School of Governance

- Will enable new forms of learning that are needed to tackle complex global challenges
- Abandon the 'transmission' or lecture model which is highly ineffective for teaching twenty-first century competencies and skills
- Promote skills such as critical thinking and the ability to communicate effectively, innovate, and solve problems through negotiation and collaboration.

Swedish School of Governance

We want to prepare society leaders to

- Tackle collaborative problem-solving scenarios that are persistent and lack clear solutions.
- Be able to handle real-world challenges which are highly complex, often ill-defined and interdisciplinary, spanning multiple domains (social, economic, political, environmental, legal and ethical).
- Reflect on ideas, hone their analytical skills, strengthen their critical and creative thinking capacities, and demonstrate initiative.
- Strengthen their ability to evaluate new inputs and perspectives, build new capacities, autonomy and networks.
